

Aw Pete, is that you?!

EGGS CAUSE IMMENSE SUFFERING!

Chickens exist in stable social groups, recognize each other, have 24 distinct cries that communicate a wealth of information to one other, are good at solving problems.

Chickens understand that an object, when hidden, nevertheless continues to exist, which is beyond the capacity of small children! They speak to their young while still in the egg. They do dinner dates, for goodness sake! Chickens can anticipate the future and demonstrate self-control, something previously attributed only to humans and other primates. Which means they know their suffering may not end! In South Africa, over more than 18 million hens are kept caged in battery systems until they become "spent".

World Egg Day? Bah humbug!

It should be a day of mourning and sadness at the killing of millions upon millions of 'useless' male chicks on egg farms, the de-beaking and caging of egg laying chickens until their exhausted bodies are sent for a cruel and terrible slaughter. They are often still alive when dipped into scalding water to remove their feathers.

97% of eggs in South Africa are from factory farms, but don't kid yourself if you are buying free range. The deaths remain the same.

Free range makes YOU feel better but does little for the animals. If you give a damn, eat like it!

We do not need eggs for nutrition, cooking or baking!

Please, reconsider your food choices.

See www.bwcsa.co.za for more information.

Aw Pete, is that you?!

EGGS CAUSE IMMENSE SUFFERING!

Chickens exist in stable social groups, recognize each other, have 24 distinct cries that communicate a wealth of information to one other, are good at solving problems.

Chickens understand that an object, when hidden, nevertheless continues to exist, which is beyond the capacity of small children! They speak to their young while still in the egg. They do dinner dates, for goodness sake! Chickens can anticipate the future and demonstrate self-control, something previously attributed only to humans and other primates. Which means they know their suffering may not end! In South Africa, over more than 18 million hens are kept caged in battery systems until they become "spent".

World Egg Day? Bah humbug!

It should be a day of mourning and sadness at the killing of millions upon millions of 'useless' male chicks on egg farms, the de-beaking and caging of egg laying chickens until their exhausted bodies are sent for a cruel and terrible slaughter. They are often still alive when dipped into scalding water to remove their feathers.

97% of eggs in South Africa are from factory farms, but don't kid yourself if you are buying free range. The deaths remain the same.

Free range makes YOU feel better but does little for the animals. If you give a damn, eat like it!

We do not need eggs for nutrition, cooking or baking!

Please, reconsider your food choices.

See www.bwcsa.co.za for more information.

